

Contents

Number 166 | Jan/Feb 2021

- 3 Focus on... Raising the profile
- 4 Notice Board
- 5 In conversation with... Professor Ben Feringa
Leigh Hoath, editor of Primary Science, interviews Nobel Prize winning scientist Professor Ben Feringa and learns of his respect for primary teachers
- 7 Discovering science through food, farming and nature
Carl Edwards discusses how food, farming and nature can help boost science learning and engagement
- 11 The what, why, how, where and when of running STEM clubs
Jo Montgomery offers advice on running a club and where to look for resources and support
- 15 Making science core again – teaching high-quality science in a time-poor curriculum
Jemima Davey addresses the challenges of offering high-quality science experiences in the classroom while also meeting the range of curriculum expectations
- 18 Introducing the ASE Primary Science Education Committee
David Church, Chair of ASE's Primary Science Education Committee, introduces the members and the support they offer to the primary science teaching community
- 21 Raising the profile of science throughout your school
Stella Clark describes how science was raised up the agenda within her school
- 24 ASE primary science lessons for home (and school) learning: a response to COVID-19
Lucy Wood and Carla Wallington review the support for primary science teaching and learning provided online by the ASE
- 27 What if inquiry-based learning doesn't work?
Ben Rogers explains why inquiry-based learning may be problematic and recommends direct teacher instruction – at least at first
- 29 Inclusive teaching in science: changing culture and practice
Carol Davenport and Annie Padwick consider how we can make science teaching inclusive for all the children in our classroom
- 31 The science of winter
Padraig MacAogain outlines how the cold winter season can support science teaching
- 34 Reviews
Cover: Engaging science down on the farm – page 7

Primary Science

Editor Dr Leigh Hoath

Interview with Professor Ben Feringa – page 5

Running a STEM Club – page 11

Raising the profile by sharing – page 21

Winter science – page 31

Executive Editor Helen Johnson

ASE editorial contact Jane Hanrott

Design/page makeup Colin Barker ndd

Advertising Rebecca Dixon-Watmough

 The Association for Science Education